Helping young relatives think about life after collegeBy RR in DCI gave this book to my niece and nephew to help them focus their college majors on their basic personality strengths and their course selection at college on the job market. Neither is particularly worldly or knowledgeable about the content of jobs in the work world. They were both grateful to have it because it opened their minds to the range of professions that might be available to someone with a liberal arts/social science degree.3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Big helpBy Poor GuyDeciding on a first or different career is difficult. Research material for big decision all here. This will help you decide. Seller is great.3 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Excellent bookBy E. L. NicodemusGreat book for helping those preparing for jobs to get to know themselves better as well as see what jobs might best give them happy careers. We are using it for a course called "College and Career Readiness."

Research has proven that matching your personality to a career brings work satisfaction and success. With this best-selling book's help, you discover your personality type and the 50 best jobs that relate to it. Part I overviews how personality relates to careers. Part II features a self-assessment for determining your personality type: Realistic, Investigative, Artistic, Social, Enterprising, or Conventional. Part III contains the best jobs lists, including the 50 best jobs overall for each personality type. Other lists for each personality type include the best-paying jobs, jobs with the highest projected growth, best jobs based on education level, and best jobs for the self-employed more than 150 best jobs lists in all. In Part IV, you find a gold mine of facts about the 50 best jobs for each of the six personality types--300 job descriptions total. New bonus lists by personality type include "Best Jobs for Flexible People," "Best Jobs for Detail Oriented People," "Best Jobs for Innovators," "Best Jobs for Analytical Thinkers," and "Best Jobs Not Behind a Desk."
